Rachel's Challenge Chain Reaction Day at Charlotte Middle School

On September 3rd and 4th, Charlotte Middle School 7th graders kicked off their middle school career by participating in one of two Rachel's Challenge Chain Reaction Days. Rachel's Challenge is an organization that Darrell and Sandy Scott founded after losing their daughter, Rachel, in the Columbine High School shooting. The main goal of Rachel's Challenge is to create a culture of kindness and compassion throughout schools and communities.

CMS 7th graders and staff listened to presenters speak about empowering everyone to start a chain reaction of kindness and compassion. Students and staff members also participated in team building activities and building relationships as our new 7th graders enter middle school. Throughout the school year CMS's Friends of Rachel Club will continue to challenge and empower students to spread kindness and compassion. Thank you to the CMS Parent Teacher Organization for helping fund this priceless experience!
